Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kim et al. (6,584,199) in view of Albanese et al. (2005/0033964).

As per claims 1, 4, 7, 10 and 11, Kim discloses: -including encrypted content data, the decryption of which requires temporally changing control words (CW), in the data stream (Column 4, Lines 41-47);
- including first decryption control messages (ECM's) in the data stream, each first decryption control message (ECM) containing at least one of the control words that is required for decrypting content data that is substantially contemporaneous with the first decryption control message (ECM) in the stream (Column 4, Lines 45-67)

-including second decryption control messages (ECM's) which contain management information for entitling selected stream receiving devices to decrypt content data from the data stream using control words from the first decryption control messages (ECM's) (Column 4, Lines 55-60),

- extracting a control word from a first decryption message (ECM) from the stream in a stream receiving device (Column 4, Lines 55-60).

Kim does not explicitly teach: -including further management information in at least part of the first decryption messages (ECM's);

- together with said extracting, testing whether the first decryption message (ECM) contains further management information targeted at the stream receiving device,

- indefinitely disabling subsequent decryption of at least part of the stream in the stream receiving device upon said detection.

However, Albanese discloses: -including further management information in at least part of the first decryption messages (ECM's) (0022-0031);

- together with said extracting, testing whether the first decryption message (ECM) contains further management information targeted at the stream receiving device (0022-0031,

- indefinitely disabling subsequent decryption of at least part of the stream in the stream receiving device upon said detection (0040-0041). Therefore it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the teachings of Albanese in conjunction with the teachings of Kim for the benefit of secure transmission between first and second module (0011).

As per claim 2, 5 and 8, rejected as applied to claims 1, 4 and 7. Furthermore, Albanese discloses: wherein the stream receiving device contains identification information that individually identifies the stream receiving device, said first decryption message (ECM) containing further identification information, said testing comprising comparing the identification information and the further identification information (0040-0041).

As per claims, 3, 6 and 9, rejected as applied to claims 1, 4 and 7. Furthermore, Albanese discloses: wherein the first encryption message (ECM) contains information that specifies a condition upon entitlement data, said testing comprising searching for entitlement data stored in said stream receiving device to detect whether any of the searched entitlement data meets said condition, and performing the disabling if such entitlement data is found (0020-0031).
